Fast Young Men To Wear Sombre Garb

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER
(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, March 2.—One of the odd phases of metropolitan styles for men at present moment is that the swiftest young men are wearing the most sombre apparel. Within the last few weeks the Broadway section has given the black ensemble to a more or less amaxed community. The latest style of garb brought out in the theatrical section consists of black suit, patent leather shoes, dark overcoat, black felt hat and chaste white muffer. It would seem that wearers of this type of outfit are playing the chameleon; putting forth the habiliments of the raven to conceal racy deeds and worldly impulses. As a rule, the type of young man given to the black ensemble is addicted to the use of unguents on the hair. Sleek heads and old faces distinguish the new school of style architects. Wand-like bodies and the ability to charm the opposite sex would also be listed as attributes of the funereal school of sartorial eccentricity.

Black felt hats are becoming more popular through the Broadway section as a result of the movement to glorify simplicity. The latest thing in black felt is of rather ample dimensions and decidedly rakish. The brim is flipped down in front or all the way around, giving the wearer a mildly piratical aspect. When worn with a white muffer the latter is carelessly tossed about the coat collar rather than trimly worn. The hat bow is in the back and of rather ample dimensions. A famous theatrical producer is said to have launched the black ensemble with the result that his faithful admirers lost no time signing up with the black brotherhood.

Styles for men, as observed in the heart of Broadway, are important for the reason that they exert a nation-wide influence. With the true instinct of the small towners, the visitor almost invariably rotates to the village square. The nearest thing in New York to a village square is that small teeming pocket located between Forty-second street and Columbus Circle. "Broadway" has been praised and reviled in song and story and its virtues and failings rather widely advertised. As a result the stranger feels that he is wrapped in delightful wickedness when promading through the quarter. The experience gives him something to talk about when he stretches his legs in the easy chair of the one and only hotel back home.

A great many styles for men start in the theatrical district of New York and rapidly spread west and south. The locality always produces something rather rare and startling and it must be said of the black ensemble that it is the most unusual vagary in dress raised in the Broadway cradle.

While it is quite true that clothing and furnishings stores now thrive where sparkling cafes formerly offered comfort and good cheer, Broadway's reputation goes marching on and its fads and fancies interest more young men than all the dignified suggestions of the carefully-garbed tailored element of more conservative quarters of the city. For the visiting youth Broadway and its odd tastes in dress are a tonic and a thrill rolled into one. All the ukelele players in the west and south have their ears to the ground for Broadway rumors that concern dress. Hence the far-reaching influence of a black ensemble for instance; something that no man would have predicted.

RICHMOND WELCOMES SPRING WITH BIG OPENING WEEK DISPLAYING FASHIONS

Richmond welcomed Spring yesterday as the city's guest of honor with the advent of the Annual Spring Opening and Fashion Week. The affair, of a city wide character with nearly all stores and shops participating, is sponsored by the Richmond Merchants Association, under the direction of Marie Macdonald Jensen, secretary.

The first hint of the attractiveness of the new spring styles, in both women's and men's wear was revealed Wednesday night when the display windows of Richmond shops were unveiled. The formal unveiling took place at 7 o'clock and evidenced a tremendous amount of thought and planning which resulted in the excellently dressed displays and marvelous decorative effects.

Yesterday, the shops and stores were thronged with eager shoppers, while the tasteful windows drew their share of "window-shoppers."

Although many of the questions as to the season's modes were answered in Wednesday's window exposition, the full statement of style will not be made until today, when the stores display their manifold exhibits. Probably the thing of keenest interest to both sexes is the brevity of the skirt. Although this has been indicated in advance dispatches from Paris and elsewhere, last night's showing was the first official visualization here of what is modishly correct. The length is still hovering around the dimpled knee, some a little above, but more usually a little below.

The extreme brevity and scantiness of the 1927 style has brought forth the daintiest expression of the designer's art, for as dress has grown less and less, there has been an increasing demand for sheer beauty for that which remains.

In keeping with this tendency, the silhouette is again the thing. The new term found this season is that of compose, which is a further expression of harmony and entrancing beauty in all of the things that go to make up the woman who is correctly attired.

Hat Models Small
In the millinery display the best that Paris, London and New York have had to offer is being shown to Richmond's women. Most of the models are seen to be small,

Spring Fabrics Show Variety in Fashion's Favor

Fabrics! All the endless varieties of cottons, silks and wools! This is the cry of fashion followers during Richmond's annual spring opening now in progress here at the various style shops and stores. We know they are the tissue from which every costume is fashioned, now let us study them a bit on their own account. Let us think of fabrics "per se," divorced from their final embodiment in frocks, wraps, gowns.

Take them in your hand, run your fingers through them, feel them, glory in the soft drapiness of satin, the sleek smoothness of flat crepe, the smooth coolness of rayon silk, the soft intimacy of crepe de Chine, the crisp freshness of taffeta, the deep softness of chiffon velvet, elusive, magical fabrics!

The same individual should no more wear every fabric than she should wear every color.

Fashion Mistress
"But how can one choose ones own suitable fabrics when fashion decrees 'what one is to wear'?" Fashion is our mistress, of course.

with some large hats for afternoon wear, especially for the country club and afternoon tea. There is little of the extreme in hat styles.

Colors and textures were found of a beauty and attractiveness in keeping with that of the other departments of the season's styles. New materials and some new colors, with numerous varied expressions of the colors of former seasons are to be seen.

In sports wear there is an increasing variety to meet the growing activities of women in the sports and general outdoor life. Here, too, slender lines are employed. Some see again in the new sports styles California exerting a world-wide influence on this type of wearing apparel, as the season's modes are said to have been inspired by California's Helen Willis. While employing many practical features, the new sports clothes at the same time have adhered closely to the demands for increasing beauty and loveliness.

Accessories are many and new, and promise to add the finishing touch of charm to the "chic" woman. Bags are seen in a multitude of attractive styles and materials, each adapted to its own particular use. Flowers of kid, suede and fabrics of many kinds, and styles are being offered.

but she is not such a strict and unrelenting mistress as you may think. Does she not give us leeway in our choice of colors and of styles? Then why not fabrics, too?

Fashion is very bounteous in her offerings. She presents us with fabrics of various "feels" or "moods," smooth and roughish, light and heavy, in such plentiful abundance and variety that every woman may choose her fabrics as she does her styles and colors—to suit herself.

This season there is soft, light, airy Georgette. It carries the message of youth, softness, daintiness, appealing winsomeness. For the tiny slip of a girl this is the ideal fabric, suitable for all sorts of frocks, from the simple sports type for daytime to the more elaborate formal evening wear.

Crepe Roman Popular
The very large woman should not wear Georgette, and the medium-sized independent type should wear it only when very simply made up or in combination with other fabrics.

For those who are fond of this spring-favored fabric, but whose type advises against its use, there is the somewhat heavier crepe roman. It retains the softness and flattery of Georgette, but displays more firmness and dignity.

Taffeta vies with Georgette this spring for first place in fashion's favor, and it, too, seems to have the spirit of youth. It bursts forth this spring in gay prints, tiny imitation checks, smart plaids, more varied than ever before, and it can be used in so many different ways.

One can have a coat of taffeta over a frock of Georgette, or a frock of taffeta under a coat of Georgette. The pastel shades or embroidered taffetas make perfectly irresistible robes de style for evening wear.

New Prints Offered

Then these enchanting new prints, some of the most important children of spring. There are prints for every person and for every occasion, roughish silk prints for sports wear and crepe de Chine prints, soft, clingy, flattering for beach, holiday, informal wear; rayon prints for lazy spring afternoons.

Saturday Isn't What It Used to Be Long Ago

By GEORINA WASHINGTON
(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 2.—It's funny how styles change in wedding days.

Time was, and not so very long ago either, when Saturday the country over was considered a day taboo for social functions. It was a sorry orphan among the days, when leisured folks stood back and let working people with a half-day off "do their stuff."

And to be married on that day—well, it was just too "tack" for anything. But now, oh, my! Saturday has forged right ahead to first place and if you're anything at all in the social plane, you'll plan your nuptials for a Saturday.

Witness what has happened recently. Last Saturday one of the "Denby boys," sons of Charles Denby, brother of the former secretary of the navy, became a Benedict and today the other followed suit.

And last Saturday saw two society weddings rivaling any in the capital in many a long day.

That was when Miss Allison Robeling, great granddaughter of the man who built the famous Brooklyn bridge, married Baron Joseph Van Der Elst, second secretary of Belgian embassy.

And when Miss Rosa May Ken drick, daughter of Senator John

B. Kendrick of Wyoming, became the bride of Major Hubert Rilly Harmon, former White House aide and recently made assistant military attaché at the American Embassy in London.

Quite some weddings all of them.

The elder Denby had been running around merrily for two weeks getting their sons married. It had been a hectic time; the first was James Orr Denby, who last week married Miss Phyllis Douglas Cochran, daughter of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Denby, Sr., Charles, Jr., and his dance, Miss Rosamond Reed, daughter of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, drove up to Philly for the ceremony. Then they all came back here for the wedding of Charles and Miss Reed. Too bad, say their friends, that the girls couldn't have gotten together and arranged a double ceremony.

But to get back to Miss Rosbeling. Hers was a diplomatic wedding, if ever there was one, with nearly all the men attendants chosen from that charming foreign younger group so dear to the hearts of debutantes.

And if the Belgian Baron didn't think his bride "a thing of beauty and a joy forever," he's simply blind, that's all. For to enhance her natural pulchritudinous endowment, Miss Rosbeling wore a bridal robe that a queen might envy.

It was designed by that sartorial connoisseur, Baroness De Carter, wife of the Belgian Ambasador; and the exquisite Brussels lace in it must have been worth a fortune.

The thing was made of heavy ivory satin fashioned along classic lines. The lace formed a square train of exaggerated length and over it fell yards and yards of tulle, originating from a coronet of the lace. And calla lilies, if you'd believe me, made the bouquet. Imagine how lovely it was.

RUSSIA WOMEN AGAIN WEAR SABLES, FOX

By LAURA PATRICK
(By Universal Service)
MOSCOW, March 2.—Fine furs are appearing once more on Moscow streets.

Timidly, the women who once were famed the world over for their taste and elegance in dress, are beginning to wear sables and mink, ermine and silver fox in public.

There were few who one short year ago risked wearing luxurious furs in theaters or restaurants. At quiet parties among friends sables would be brought from hiding and worn some; even being dug up from secret graves in the garden or cellar for private celebrations where only a few gathered. They were usually worn only when it was certain they would attract no unpleasant attention.

In those days the government kept a stricter eye on all who showed signs of prosperity and sky-high taxation followed too much flaunting of ermine or sable.

Nowadays a luxurious fur scarf is no exception. In fact many thread-bare dresses are hidden by sable stoles two feet wide that almost sweep the floor. Such a neckpiece sells for around $500 here.

Astrakhan a Favorite

Astrakhan is the favorite for general wear. Poor indeed is the person who hasn't a collar and cap at least of this kinky, serviceable and unbecoming fur. Caucasians wear rakish astrakhan turbans the year around, but strictly for ornament, since their climate is "severely" warm.

Sleek black seal-skins cut in ample lines, blue-grey squirrel, minks, and martens with a bright flower nestling in enormous collars add a touch of luxury and brightness to the down-at-the-heel Soviet scene, this winter.

Russian women stick to the old fashion of fur coats cut so generously that they can swathe themselves in their folds. No short chic jackets. No sport models. No coonskins. Rather billowing mantle effects, reminiscent of royal luxury. Certainly this style shows off the quality and richness of the skins to better advantage.

The old and the new "bourgeoisie" still contrive to have their furs, while the workers and peasants go around clad in odorous sheepskins, with the wool turned inside. These proletarian garments are called "Romanoffs." The new merchants must spend their money as quickly as they make it, to keep the government from taking it in one form or tax or another. So their women-folk cannily buy sables, silver fox, ermine and diamonds and store them away.

Old Styles Appear

The old bourgeoisie—meaning people who were prosperous before the revolution—have somehow managed to hold some of their furs. Descript old ladies with not enough to eat sometimes present quite a dash of appearance in well-worn mink or seal-skin coats, cut in the style of 20 years ago.

All the vivacious little Soviet actresses, who make a salary of $25 a month, dance around in squirrel coats of the quality that would sell for $400 or $500 in America. They buy the skins one by one from the open-air markets. A tailor around the corner makes them up and for something around $100 they have a coat fit for the favorite of a shoveler king.

A sable coat sells for about a fourth the price here that it brings in America. In the government stores a good quality Russian sable in full length coat is sold for $1,500.

Squirrel, though cheaper here, is not equal to the furs that come from Canada either in quality or pleasing color. Since the revolution the Russian fur workers are not as painstaking as they were formerly, and the furs have lost both in quality and tasteful matching.

Clever Details Keep One-Piece Frocks in Fashionous Limelight

A Style Talk By Maude Hall

Paris, in her most accommodating mood, designs a pleasing choice of new frocks for many women of many minds. And she does it all upon the basis of the straight line frock, as if the straight line were the shortest distance between chic and practicality.

It is graciously adapted to all times and all occasions during the day, then translated to the needs of evening by its development in regal fabrics and scintillating trimmings.

Truly, the latest originations of Paris are frocks of breath-taking loveliness, yet the home dress-maker may copy them so successfully that she will be at ease in any company when wearing the result of her own handiwork.

Reckoned among the season's smartest combinations must be Georgette and velvet. In fact, velvet, like fur, is becoming perennial, especially since the manufacturers of this fabric have achieved such incredible things in transparencies. These sheer velvets are featured in gowns which are being planned months in advance of the present time.

A rich dark green Georgette features the bloused bodice so becoming to women who wear their clothes with an aristocratic air. The front of the dress is cut in scallops on either side, the scallops opening over a narrow panel of velvet. This arrangement, of course, permits of the changing of the panel to suit the personal taste, but when velvet underlays Georgette the effect is charming. The skirt is laid in plaits, while turn-back cuffs finish the long, close-fitting sleeves.

Another design, which will be recognized immediately as Parisian, because of its subtle lines, is developed in a combination of Georgette and crepe satin. A turn-down collar finishes the open neck, and, if preferred, the collar may be made on the reverse side of the satin. The sleeves are of dolman type, being of crepe chiffon. They are left open part way and trimmed with applied cuffs to correspond with the collar. Here is a dress that is simple and practical, yet, developed in fabrics reserved for formal use, meets the needs of the woman whose station in life demands that she be amply supplied with dresses of semi-formal design.

There are so many models suited alike to the business woman and the woman whose time is her own, that it is impossible to make detailed note of them all. A frock which may be developed with equal smartness in cloth, crepe satin, or silk has the front slashed through an applied band, which is underlaid and rolled back to form tiny revers. Surmounting the reverse is a collar of self-material, while the trimming band is ornamented with colorful buttons. At the side-fronts, the skirt is slashed, then laid in plaits over inserted sections. Here contrasting material may be introduced if desired. Patch pockets stitched over the plaits, and to these a touch of embroidery may be added. Embroidery is one of the determining factors in frock smartness this season, for its popularity may properly be ascribed to several of the leading designers of Paris. Plaid taffeta is featured in some advance models planned with unusual skill. A design, which also falls under the influence of embroidery, is in a combination of black, white, and pale green; the stripes of the plaid being woven in satin on the taffeta background. The fronts of the bodice are cut away in bolero effect, with the foundation of plain silk. This has an embroidery design just above the belt. The sleeves may be worn short or long, but if the latter, they should be finished with turn-back cuffs. The bolero front is laid in plaits on the shoulders and included in shoulder and underarm seams.

The bolero is one of the surest avenues to youthful chic in the fashion of old laces, women of the old regime appear at the various embassies with their offerings, which probably could be matched nowhere else in the world. They have brought them forth from garrets, from cellars where they have been hidden since the revolution. Many of them are pieces from the collections of Grand Duchesses and Princesses.

Black Chantilly is particularly popular for evening dresses in the foreign colony here. The new young wife of a secretary at the Italian embassy appeared at a dance given by the Latvian minister in a little frock almost as short and bouffant as an old-fashioned ballet costume. The skirt just tipped her knees and was of yards and yards of exquisite old Chantilly over a billowing fluff of shell-pink tulle. The waist was in basque effect finished off at the normal waistline with a simple silver cord combined with a cluster of silver laurel leaves.

Because of the difficulty of keeping in touch with Paris fashions here, the foreign women develop their own individual and very becoming styles. They find many luxurious and rich old brocades, laces and embroideries from the pre-revolutionary era to work with.

Now Mrs. McHie is planning a trip to the far east and "the ends of the earth," but she still feels the same about "humans and dogs" even if that memorial hospital was only an air castle.

Encouraged by this revival of the fashion of old laces, women of the old regime appear at the various embassies with their offerings, which probably could be matched nowhere else in the world. They have brought them forth from garrets, from cellars where they have been hidden since the revolution. Many of them are pieces from the collections of Grand Duchesses and Princesses.

LACE CRAZE RAGES AMONG RUSSIA WOMEN

By LAURA PATRICK
(By Universal Service)

MOSCOW, March 2.—A shawl of rarest Brussels lace which the doting Napoleon I had made especially for his Josephine will be put on sale here soon. A Russian woman, formerly very rich, had this treasure handed down from her grandmother, a collector of fine laces.

It has the imperial wreath in one corner with a large N over it, and is triangular in shape with the flowing lines best suited to Empire dresses.

A craze for rare laces has broken out among the women of the diplomatic corps here. The new fashion was started when Countess Manzoni, handsome wife of the Italian Ambassador to Russia, appeared at a dinner wearing a stunning shawl of richest black Chantilly over a white evening dress.

Thereafter lace shawls of every size and description were the order of the day.

Encouraged by this revival of the fashion of old laces, women of the old regime appear at the various embassies with their offerings, which probably could be matched nowhere else in the world. They have brought them forth from garrets, from cellars where they have been hidden since the revolution. Many of them are pieces from the collections of Grand Duchesses and Princesses.

'Plus Tens' and Oxford Bags Are Coming To The Fore

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER
(Universal Service Fashion Expert)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Good things in trousers interest the young voters immensely and it seems that the youthful imagination is always ignited by extremes. "Plus tens" knickers and "Oxford bags" are at present to the fore.

Emaciated masculine shanks are being emphasized by the new "plus ten" knickerbockers, recently introduced and apparently destined to be very popular among the younger men of extreme tastes. "Plus ten" knickers are the Oxford bags of the abbreviated school of dress and as spring approaches occasional phantoms are noted on Broadway wearing such extreme bifurcated garments with racoon overcoats.

The "plus tens" have a very liberal drape and completely cover the knees, leaving only that portion of the masculine limbs exposed commonly known as "shins." Owing to the fact that the pants are very wide and masculine legs below the knees very narrow the effect is one of extreme candor in dress.

Some of the light-o-loves who flutter from dance place to dance place in New York wear vivid check stockings but the majority of playful adventurers are self-conscious enough to confine their hostelry to the modest effects such as heathery and solid blacks and blues. Stylists declare that the college boys have given their approval to "plus tens" and assure the universe that bigger, if not better pants, will be generally noted this spring in town and country.

"Oxford bags," those voluminous affairs denounced by everybody except the young fellows who wear them, have been officially blue-printed for the spring and summer of 1927. The boys at Oxford are willing to compromise at 20 inches. Last year the expanse at the bottom was 26 inches and at one time "bags" reached a climax at 36 inches. It is almost impossible to say just exactly what will happen to a British style after it strikes New York. The metropolis upsets people and fashions. New York City boys are the most extreme dressers in the world. It is the custom of designers who fill their requirements to pick out the wildest things in Europe and then make them a little wilder for New York.

The "Oxford bags" of today are of a new shade, a blue finish grey, in both light and dark shades. While it is claimed in England that the authorized width of 20 inches will continue to prevail in that country the New York sheiks are preparing to outdo their youthful brethren across the sea. Judging from metropolitan comment there will be plenty of 30-inch bags noted by the sad seaside this summer and just as soon as it is safe for the boys to invade the resorts on Sunday the wind will sing some merry dangers, through the vast tunnels within which lurk the lower limbs of far from modest youth.

Two-Color Effect To Be Popular

Compose themes are quite pronounced, in fact, almost every hat shows the influence. Two-tone grosgrain bands, the felt hat with light crown and darker brim, the hat with two colors worked diagonally on the crown which is called the "ace of ace" hat, are popular examples of compose.

The smart fabrics are headed once more by felt, though there is quite a display of Ballbunt and crocheted visca, which is to be expected, for straws are so distinctly of spring mode.

Among the new colors first of all come the blues, mosaic, Florence blue, Mediterranean, Sistine, Bernice, hydrangea and baby blue. The beige and brown tones are headed by monkeyskin, tile, oak-buff, bisque, and yellow-beige. The greens are gooseberry, jungle, pistache and Nile. In the roses and reds are Athena, Grecian and June rose; goya, fiesta, strawberry, wild raspberry and firecracker. The trimmings are very simple, just a grosgrain band—most often in two colors—a novel pin or ribbon corcader. Flowers are seldom seen, though there is a new feather nasturtium on one of Rebour's skull caps. For formal afternoon wear beautiful feathers are the correct trim.

Green Retains Its Popularity

Green is a perennial favorite with those who wear it well, but as yet there have been no signs of its being as popular this season as it has been at times. Three new greens make their appearance: Palmetto, darker than reseda green; gooseberry, the color of ripe gooseberries, and pistache, a paler shade with a yellowish light. This last shade should prove very smart for frocks to be worn on the field of sport and at resorts because it is so gay and springy looking.

Hikers' Demands Bring New School Of Walking Dress

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER
(Universal Service Fashion Expert)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Seasons come and seasons go but the hiker persists. As a result of the pedal activities of the outdoor brotherhood there has been created a new school of dress that may frequently be noted about New York. Nearly every large office or plant has its hiking club and unless blizzards interfere with their plans they are abroad over the week-ends. In New York they hike the New Jersey Palisades and invade Westchester suburbs, where roads and scenery conform with the dreamer's ideals. The accepted garb for hiking, as construed under the 1927 program, calls for a Glenurquhart cap with knickers to match; heavy shaker sweater with or without the roll collar, brogue shoes and heavy woolen stockings. For those who care for that sort of thing there are stout walking sticks in the native state with the bark still clinging to the wood.

Less adventurous souls do much of their hiking in Central Park and their favorite spot is the circular promenade around the Central Park reservoir. Here every morning may be observed pallid young men who are trying to build up their bodies, stout business gentlemen "walking it off" on the

Blues Blend in Compose Scheme

The compose idea is happily abetted by the lovely new colors that have made their appearance this spring. Most outstanding are the new blues, whose freshness and gayness makes them particularly charming for spring costumes. The new navy is often called ink blue and is brighter than it has been for many seasons. Liberty blue is next in the range and resembles the royal blue of past years. Then come a whole group of medium blues, all distinguished by their lack of purple tone. French blue, empire blue, queen's blue, Flemish blue—these are the best. The lighter blues are for evening—ciel, forget-me-not and turquoise are most stressed.

doctor's orders and overfed gentry endeavoring to bring down high stomachs. Hiking is now decidedly fashionable in New York and the fact that it costs nothing does not interfere with its fair fame. The doctors declare that motor cars and soft foods have debauched the country and they are trying to persuade their patients to take off suet and put on muscle.

New Theory of Color, 'Compose' Blends Season's Fashion Color

The woman of fashion must add a new word to her vocabulary if she would keep step with the mode. That word is "compose," created by French fashion designers to express the new theory of color, which is one of the dominant features of the third annual Richmond spring opening, now being observed at the local stores. A most important word, this one, holding within itself the promise of a more or less intensity and become, instead, parts of a glorious blending of tones in a chromatic symphony.

The compose theme supplants the sombre coloring of last season in which one tone melted actually into another. A sombre frock started pink at the neck line and almost imperceptibly deepened in tone until the hem became a flaming scarlet. However lovely such an effect may have been, the compose idea promises to surpass it in charm and individuality. Here each color is clearly defined, but they are so skillfully chosen that while each receives its full value, the ensemble effect is one of beautiful unity. Two plans may be used to carry out the compose plan—either several tones of one color may be combined or harmonizing shades of different colors may be employed.

The crinolined and bustled ancestors of the modern smart woman would undoubtedly throw up their hands in horror if they could witness some of the color combinations made possible by the compose theory. To them pink was pink and red was red, and never the twain shall meet. Fashion, versatile artist that she is, combines pink, rose and raspberry, and achieves a frock that is a joy to the eye.

Most lovely of all, however, is the blue compose. Flocks of flutery Georgette wear each pleated flounce in a different tone of blue. The new shades of green make a charming compose and shades of beige, tan and brown are greatly favored by fashion for such combinations.

Even the more modest dresses are cut surprisingly low in the rear, although the bottom of the U-opening may be filled with tulle or chiffon. The vogue is beautifully although modestly exemplified in the newest costumes designed for the Princesses Christina and Beatrice of Spain, now about 17 and 19 years.

Down the Back

The introduction and emphasis of the back décolleté has not checked the vogue for necklaces and heavy costume jewelry. Now, however, the strands of pearls, of jade and crystal are allowed to fall down the middle of the back instead of being disposed over the breast. The lavallieres are heavier and more ornate than ever.

Slip-on Glove Is Popular Favorite

The slip-on glove is the all-around accessory this season. It is worn with any and every costume. Elastic insets at the inside of the wrist often give the glove a trim line, and scalloped edges may provide an interesting note.

Utility District Is On a Sound Financial Basis

Bonds of the East Bay Utility District have come into their own in the financial world and are now recognized as being as safe for investment as the securities of any California city, it was shown in a statement today by Dr. George C. Pardee, president of the district, who made public a statement of the secretary and accountant, John H. Kimball.

"When we sold our first batch of bonds, the district was not known among the bond buyers of the country," said Dr. Pardee. "It was the first district of its kind to offer bonds for sale. And so, for the first $5,000,000 we offered the premium paid was $110,888. The bonds sold on the market on a 4.60 basis, and the syndicate that bought them from us had some little difficulty in disposing of them to investors.

"The next $5,000,000 we sold, therefore, carried a premium of only $25,288. But these bonds were quickly taken up by the investors, some of the life insurance companies taking blocks of them. "So, when, on February 11, we opened bids for $1,000,000 of our bonds the bidding was spirited—thirteen bidders, an unusually large number, participating. The bids varied from a premium of $56,899.30 to one of $75,113, the latter being, of course, accepted.

"As long as the bond market continues to be as good as it now is, the bonds of our district will continue to bring premiums about as large as the bonds of any California city—which amounts to a virtual vote of confidence in the district by the bond buyers of this country. "The following is a condensation of the last report of Secretary Kimball.

"Total construction authorized to December 31, 1926, $10,897,774.87; total construction completed to December 31, 1926, $8,501,941.09; cash on hand December 31, 1926, $3,138,642.29; bonds outstanding December 31, 1926, $10,000,000; average monthly disbursements, July 1 to December 31, 1926, $864,785; ratio of administrative expenses to cost of construction, 18 months, July 1, 1925, to December 31, 1926, 3.25 per cent.

"Note.—Administration expenses include the following:

"Salaries of general office employees, rent, stationery and printing, auditing, advertising, telephone and telegraph, depreciation office furniture, all other miscellaneous and sundry office expense—all of which total for the 18 months, $194,886.25; all legal expenses, including verdicts in condemnation suits, for same period, $81,863.

"Total administrative expense, 18 months, $276,749.25.

"Which latter sum is 3.25 per cent of the $8,501,941.09 spent for construction up to December 31, 1926.

"Usually the administrative expense on enterprises as large as this one is considerably higher than ours has been. Ours has been 3.25 per cent of the construction cost, and will be less as the construction expenditures increase."

In future it will be necessary to ask jurors whether they favor conviction of public officials for wrong doing.—Rockford Star.

A Roman theatre in a cellar has been discovered in Bialbeck. They must have had play censors in those days too.—Flint Journal.

Mr. H. Haskell was very much discouraged after two months of the Fong Wan Herb treatment and wished to quit.

He was urged to continue the herbs and was completely relieved after three more months of the Fong Wan Herb.

His testimonial

Oakland, Calif.,
I suffered for many years from sores of the stomach and from bladder trouble. After years of treatment without results, I became very much discouraged and feared that I should never again be well. One day I saw in the newspaper a testimonial that Mr. P. Oliver had given to the FONG WAN HERB CO. As his case had been similar to mine, I called upon Mr. Oliver and learned from him that everything stated in that testimonial was true. I then began to faithfully take the FONG WAN HERB TREATMENT and after three months I was a well man. At the time of this writing my blood test is negative and my bladder is in splendid condition. 3113 Linden St.

SPRING STYLES ARE SHOWN BY LOCAL STORES

Crowds Line Sidewalks as Spring Fashion Windows are Unveiled

Record crowds witnessed the unveiling of Richmond shop windows last night in celebration of Spring's somewhat doubtful arrival. Almost without exception local merchants and shopkeepers had made careful plans for the event and Macdonald avenue presented a brilliant scene of gay colors and appreciative audiences. It would be difficult to describe all of the exhibits and give the proper amount of space that each merited. It is possible to speak of only a few of the many prize-worthy exhibitions.

The J. C. Penney company exhibited over 75 garments in the two-hour model show in the windows of the shop. An effective background of black and white contributed toward accentuating the appeal of the exquisite gowns.

Only 16 and 18-year-old sizes could be shown last night. The Penney company, however, has a big stock of larger and extra sizes. The models shown are a part of the regular stock of the company. Another feature of the exhibit was an unusual display of ladies' novelty shoes for spring and the newest models and shapes in millinery.

The Fashions, Abrahams company, 820-822 Macdonald avenue, had on display an attractive window offering of women's clothing in which the prevailing mode was testified in the sheer white and black ensemble suits and gowns. This style was carried out in the close fitting toques, so popular for spring wear.

Albert's Inc., displayed a well chosen assortment of children's wear. A special feature of the window exhibition was the unique arrangement of toilet articles. The prevailing mode of black and white was again apparent in the coats and gowns displayed.

The W. S. McCracken Clothing and Furnishing Shop showed a striking number of the new spring tweeds in gray and brown. Men's clothing this season is tending toward the two button soft material models, with flowing, wide lapels. Bright colors in scarfs and cravats offset somewhat the natural conservatism of the fashions.

Latzo-Simonich Bout Postponed

(By Universal Service)
CHICAGO, March 2.—The ten-round match between Pete Latzo, welterweight champion, and Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., scheduled for next Monday night, was postponed today for the third time. The bout will be held March 10, if the principals recover from ailments before that time. Latzo is suffering from an infected lip. Simonich, injured here today from a barbiturate overdose, was in perfect condition.

MAY RAISE BIG MIDDLE SPAN OF BRIDGE TODAY

Weather conditions permitting the huge 750 ton north span of the Carquinez straits bridge will be hoisted 125 feet above the water today and riveted into position on the longest highway bridge in the world.

The operation is said to be so delicate that the slightest wave action, wind, fog, or rain, will cause bridge engineers to postpone the event.

The north fairway of the straits has been closed and the utmost precautions have been taken to prevent wave action.

COOLIDGE O.K.S. HOUSE ACCEPTS NAVAL BILL FOR NEW CRUISERS

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Coolidge today signed the naval appropriation bill with its provision of $450,000 to start "immediate construction" of three fast, modern cruisers.

His action came within 24 hours of his expression of hope that the five naval powers will finally enter into a conference at Geneva this month for limitation of cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

President Coolidge was known to be opposed to the construction of more cruisers. He told Congress in his budget message that this venture would be unfortunate at a time when the United States (Continued to Page 15)

Former Statesman Injured in Crash

(By Universal Service)
CHICAGO, March 2.—Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury under President Taft, was injured today after being injured last night in an automobile accident.

Doctors took an X-ray picture today, fearing that there were possibly some broken bones. Dr. L. L. McArthur expressed the gravest concern over his condition, although he said that there was every chance for his recovery. The fact that he is 87 years old, it was believed, would retard his progress.

He was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Rapp, shortly after he had left his quarters at the University club. He is a retired Chicago merchant and banker.

DEMONSTRATE SAFETY SIGNAL IN RICHMOND

New Electric Signals, Is Demonstrated On Macdonald

Demonstrations of the new boulevard stop signal put out as an experiment by the California State Automobile association were made at the city hall yesterday afternoon by J. W. Johnson, chief engineer for the association, and W. A. Moore, district manager.

The two varieties of stop signal installed temporarily at Ninth and Tenth streets on Macdonald avenue have proven unsatisfactory. City Manager J. A. McVittie stated. The red bull's eye reflector placed on the pavement has not been conspicuous enough to halt motorists and the "see-through" sign, which was intended to give light behind it and reflect through the tinted glass has been found to confuse drivers through reflection from shop windows.

"Richmond needs a stop signal which will prove efficacious both during daytime and at night," McVittie declared. "In fairness to the driver and in pursuance of our safety policy we must have a sign that will provide adequate protection to motorists and pedestrians."

Maroon Background
McVittie stated that a uniform and standardized system of stop signals in all cities would do much to prevent accidents. Automobile drivers are naturally somewhat confused by an entirely different system of signals in each city.

The new type of boulevard signs developed by the automobile association consists of the regular stop warning which appears in electrically illuminated letters on a maroon background. On the reverse of the sign appears the name of the street. When installed on alternative sides of the street the signals admonish the driver to halt and at the same time tell him which thoroughfare he is approaching.

City officials who witnessed the exhibition were unanimous in their approval.

Thoroughly Safe

"We have just sold San Francisco $10,000 worth of these signs," W. A. Moore, district manager of the association, declared. "Public sentiment demanded that a thoroughly safe sign be installed. We shall place one on trial in Berkeley tomorrow. The probabilities are that a uniform system of stop signs will be installed throughout the United States shortly."

The State Automobile association puts in all stop signs for the city and retains their upkeep. Direction and warning signs have been installed all over the United States by the automobile association.

The sign exhibited yesterday will be placed on trial in Richmond, and if it proves satisfactory will be adopted on local street thoroughfares.

Meanest Man Gets Nine Cents Change From Bogus Penny

The "meanest man" has made his appearance in Richmond. Albert Hunt, proprietor of a cigar store at 628 Macdonald avenue, reported to the local authorities that an economical soul entered his place of business Tuesday night and ordered a bar of candy. He laid a piece of money on the counter, which, after the curmudgeon departed, proved to be nothing more than a penny treated with mercury. The strictest measures are expected to be taken with the culprit if he is apprehended.

C. Of C. Bridge Committee To Attend Meet

Ford Caravan To Join In Bridge Celebration
Is Suggested

Headed by Aubrey Wilson, chairman, the Carquinez bridge committee, representing the Richmond chamber of commerce, and comprising John A. Miller, J. P. Strom, F. T. Osborn and Frank Scholtes, will attend the general Carquinez bridge celebration committee, meeting at 8 o'clock next Monday evening, March 7, in the Berkeley chamber of commerce.

The general committee is headed by W. M. Laidlaw of Crockett. At its meeting Monday night further details of the dedication and celebration opening the mighty Carquinez bridge will be made. The celebration date is Saturday, May 21.

At the last meeting of the general committee held in Richmond, it was decided to have this city well represented in the mighty auto caravan and pageant that will travel to the world's largest highway bridge on May 21. John A. Miller suggested that Richmond could well be represented by a great caravan of Fords, typical of the Ford plant which has purchased a site in Richmond.

Meanwhile chambers of commerce, city and county officials, state officials, headed by Governor Young, as well as the chief executives of Oregon, Washington and Nevada, have accepted invitations to attend the dedication ceremonies. Governor Young will deliver the dedication address.

President Coolidge will turn a golden key in the nation's capitol which will release a giant American flag on the topmost pinnacle of the Carquinez span and formally open the bridge to motor traffic.

Canada Asked To Join U. S. in Water Problem

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 2.—Canada has been asked to join this government in referring the Roanoke river drainage system problem in Minnesota and Manitoba to the international joint commission, the state department announced today.

Construction of drainage ditches in Minnesota and Manitoba has increased the volume of water in the main stream of the river and has subjected the riparian property to inundation during stages of high water.

NORTH FORCES DESERT COLORS TO JOIN CHANG

Supplementary Force Are Isolated as Railroads
Are Blocked

(By Universal Service)

SHANGHAI, March 2.—Thousands of Sun Chuan Fang's defeated troops tonight were reported to be deserting to the Cantonese. They have left only a skeleton of what was once a formidable army.

Dissatisfaction with the introduction of Fengtien troops in the Shanghai area is given as the reason.

Shantung Troops Blocked

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, March 2.—Shantung forces, rushing to the relief of General Sun Chuan-Fang's defeated army in Shantung, were reported tonight to be isolated in the province of Anhui, according to a dispatch to the Daily News.

The report indicates that the northern forces were flanked by the Cantonese, who blockaded the Tientsin-Pukow railroad at Wuyi, just north of Nanjing.

Anhui, also called Ngan-Nwei, is an inland province, with a population of about 20,000,000. It is watered by the Yang-Tse-Kiang, Hwai-Ho and their affluents. Nanjing is one of the greatest military depots in China, and is situated about 580 miles from Peking. It was in this city that the treaty between the British and China, terminating the opium war, was signed in 1842.

Man Is Bruised As Auto Turns Over On Street

M. W. Jones, 434 Nevin street sustained slight cuts and bruises and his automobile was badly damaged when it turned over while rounding the corner of Gaynor avenue and Lucas street at 11:30 last night.

The accident occurred when Jones turned the corner too sharply to avoid another machine. The car was righted and taken to a garage for repairs.

NAB MURDERER AFTER ATTEMPT TO ROB BANK

(By Universal Service)
EVERETT, Wash., March 2.—Facing a charge of first degree murder, Edward Sickles, alias Jack Spaulding, 27, daring bandit and jail breaker, was held in the Snohomish county jail here tonight for the slaying of Peter Z. Brewster, town marshal at Sultan, this morning.

Positive identification of Sickles as the man Brewster arrested this morning and who escaped from the county jail was made by witnesses.

The marshal surprised Sickles in the alleged act of preparing to rob the Citizens' State Bank, and seized two rifles and 100 rounds of ammunition in a stolen automobile Sickles had parked in an alley behind the bank.

Mingles With Searchers
Brewster was locking the man up when the prisoner drew a revolver, fired once and fled. The marshal fell mortally wounded, dying a few minutes later. Sickles darted under a nearby house and stripped off a shirt and jumper he had apparently worn to disguise himself during the bank robbery, boldly reappearing on the street a few minutes later in neat business clothes. Mingling nonchalantly with the excited crowd searching for the murderer. He had also used grease paint makeup, skillfully changing his swarthy complexion to a sallow pallor.

Had Long Record
Two hours later, while citizen posse scoured the countryside, Chester A. Dalley, Everett police chief, recognized Sickles on the streets of Sultan from police "rogues-gallery" photos and placed him under arrest.

Sickles escaped November 30 from Deer Lodge, Montana, penitentiary and has a long criminal record for holdups and other offenses. He was at liberty at the time on heavy bail on Seattle banditry charges.

Only One Piece Of Dry Legislation Is Passed By House

WASHINGTON, March 2.—With the wets in a bitter split the senate tonight passed the prohibition reorganization bill by a vote of 72 to 6, the only piece of dry legislation to ride through this congress. The bill goes to President Coolidge, having passed the house at its last session.

FILIBUSTER IN SENATE PERILS PENSIONS BILL

Pension Fund, Veteran
Legislation Threatened
By Reed-Reed Fight

(By FRASER EDWARDS)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Held in the grip of a relentless filibuster against the Reed resolution extending the life of the slush fund committee, the Senate virtually ceased to function today as the big gold clock over the vice-president's desk ticked off the precious minutes of the dying session of Congress.

The leader of the filibuster, Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, threatened to carry it on until the stroke of noon on Friday ends the present session. If he makes good his threat and his opponent, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, refuses to yield, half a dozen important pieces of legislation will go to the junk heap.

Perils Vet Fund
It will mean the failure of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. That measure carries $37,000,000 for compensation to world war veterans. Unless it passes, the Veterans' Bureau will be forced to suspend payments to veterans.

The bill also provides $35,000,000 for pensions to the veterans and the widows of other wars. The farmers in the drought stricken areas of the northwest also will suffer, as the bill carries $3,000,000 for free seeds.

Building Bill Threatened
In addition, the administration's alien property bill, the whisky bill, the $125,000,000 public building bill and an appropriation of $19,000,000 for new postoffices, are in danger of dying as a consequence of the filibuster.

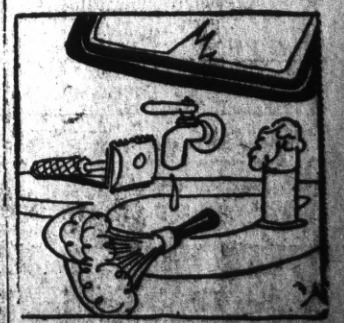

The two Reeds, who are distant cousins, are the most aggressive fighters in the Senate. When they are pitted against each other no quarter is given or asked.

While the Pennsylvania denied that he was filibustering to prevent an examination of the ballots in the senatorial election in the Keystone state, he told newspaper men that the Reed resolution "will never pass unless I fall dead on the floor."

BUILDING PERMIT FOR COTTAGE IS ISSUED
A building permit issued yesterday by Inspector J. F. Walsh of El Cerrito certifies that M. Perino will erect a cottage on Kearney street near Central, El Cerrito, at a cost of $3,000.

3 SUBPOENAED FOR HEARING OF HARRY SINCLAIR

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—An imposing array of witnesses including Senator Thomas F. Walsh, of Montana; Reed Smoot, of Utah; and Alva Adams of Colorado, have been subpoenaed to testify in the trial of Harry F. Sinclair, oil millionaire, which gets under way in District of Columbia criminal court Monday. It was learned today.

Sinclair is under indictment for contempt of the senate for refusing to answer questions before the Walsh investigating committee which probed the oil lease scandals in 1924.

The trial will be the first of the scheduled criminal actions growing out of the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve which Sinclair's companies secured from former secretary of the interior Albert B. Fall.

France Promises To Ratify Debt Fund Agreement

WASHINGTON, March 2.—France made today what was regarded a tacit promise that the agreement providing for repayment of her four billion war debt to this country will be ratified.

In her formal pledge to pay thirty million dollars on the war debt today Premier Poincare stated that "after a debt funding agreement has been ratified," a third of this sum will be credited to the prescribed annuity. The significance of this language was heightened by contrast with the cautious "if, and when" Secretary of the Treasury Mellon employed in his announcement on Monday of the new payment plan. Much of the previous French comment on ratification has been indefinite.

States attorney for the District of Columbia, will handle the case with him will be associated Owen J. Roberts and Allee Pomerene, special government counsel in the oil cases.

STATE DEPT. IS MUM ON NOTE TO MEXICO

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The state department continued today to elude the lid of secrecy upon the contents of the new note to Mexico.

It was explained that it is for the Mexican government to say if it shall be published. The state department, it was learned, is quite willing to do so, but diplomatic courtesy and usage leave the decision to the country to which the note is addressed.

The report persisted that the note is a polite reminder to the Mexican government to refrain from attempting to influence American sentiment through unofficial channels. It also is said to have called Mexico to account for opposing the United States in the effort to establish stability in Nicaragua. While admitting that Mexico is an independent and sovereign nation and has every right to do so, it is understood that this government reminded Mexico that such a course of action is considered an unfriendly act.

On the other hand there was another report that the note concerns extending the life of the claims commission, which expires in August. The American senate has adopted a resolution to this effect, but to date Mexico has not acted. The claims commission is the tribunal officially suggested for the adjustment of damages growing out of Mexican land and property disputes.

In this connection it was significant today that some eight or ten oil companies filed claims against threatened Mexican expropriations since January 1 and the refusal of the Mexican government to permit them to operate the properties under the former laws. The state department declined to divulge the names of the properties.

Trans-Atlantic Fliers Believed Lost on Ocean

(By Universal Service)
CADIZ, Spain, March 2.—All efforts to communicate with the Uruguayan trans-Atlantic fliers, commanded by Major Lorre-Borge, failed tonight.

The fliers left Casablanca, Morocco, early today, en route for the Canary Islands. It is feared that they may have been forced to land on the high seas or on some barren part of the African coast.

The Canary islands lie about 100 miles from the west coast of Africa.

Coolidge Eats First Dinner In New White House

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 2.—President and Mrs. Coolidge ate their first dinner in the temporary White House tonight. At 6 o'clock the official luncheon drove up in front of the Patterson place on Dupont Circle and the chief executive and his wife stepped out.

That was all the trouble moving was to them.

No furnishings other than what is needed for the table and bed were sent from the White House. The Patterson place being completely—and surprisingly—furnished.

The installation of an intricate telephone system and the placing of a special policeman outside the house was all that was needed.

Miss Eleanor Schlesinger, who belongs to the wealthy Patterson family of Chicago, owns the Patterson house.

The White House is now closed for repairs on the roof, which made the presidential move necessary. They will probably not move back until September.

TRADE BARRIER

In Europe there is a growing demand for the elimination of trade barriers. Statesmen are asking for free trade between the many states which go to make up the continent. And an elimination of tariff barriers would undoubtedly reduce friction among European nations.

Some of our own free trade newspapers, however, are making the mistake of assuming that because European states want to cut down trade barriers among themselves the United States ought to reduce its tariffs to the "revenue only" point.

But the assumption will not stand investigation. European countries especially those which go in for manufacturing have a standard of living and a wage system which is pretty generally the same. Their trade barriers have been political rather than economic and were the outgrowth of the hatreds engendered in the World War. To eliminate these barriers would be a step toward forming a United States of Europe. In the United States of America we do not have tariff barriers between our sovereign states. In all of them the standard of living is the same. Eliminating the barriers of Europe would put the various countries over there on the same economic footing as are New York and Pennsylvania and Illinois in the United States.

But it does not follow that eliminating our protective tariff would form a similar policy. In America we have a wage scale and a system far ahead of anything in Europe. Our workmen have what they want to eat and wear and in many instances own their own homes and drive automobiles.

The workman in Europe is thankful for a job at any wage, and he doesn't even dream of the time when he will own a motor car and have money in the bank.

Eliminating our protective tariff therefore would subject us to competition from a continent which could undersell us, because of its wages and living standards. If we were able ever to meet that competition it would be on a basis of European wages and European standards of living. And this is something no patriotic American will look forward to with complacency.

The lightning rod set on St. Paul's cathedral, London, by Benjamin Franklin and recently removed, weighed nearly two tons. The light copper strips replacing it weigh only a few pounds.

Judging from the headlines, there's no news but bad news.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received, only a few can be answered by mail. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instruction. ### FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTIPATION

A Michigan man occupies the pulpit today. He does as I say, and so I am glad to let him say as I do:

Ludington, Mich., 1-19-27.

Dr. William Brady,

"Dear Sir:

"You are wrong when you call constipation a habit. It is not even a habit. It simply does not exist, except in the imagination. I know whereof I speak. I am 55 years old and have suffered with constipation (in imagination) since childhood.

"When I first read your remarks on constipation, I believed that you were right about most cases but I was sure my case was different. You see, I had reached the stage where I was convinced that nothing could pass through my bowels until it was reduced to a semi-liquid state by the use of some kind of a cathartic. I was quite sure that if I were placed in a position where I could not obtain a cathartic I would die a horrible death. Then I came across a statement of yours, to the effect that nothing but a complete obstruction of the intestines could hinder the action of the bowels, and that an interval of a week or ten days without a bowel passage was not harmful.

"Eight months ago I decided to take your word for it and go the limit. I did. My pill box still sits on my bedroom dresser. The lid has not been off it for eight months. The first bowel movement came eight days after banishing the pills. It came naturally and painlessly. Since then the movements have come at irregular intervals of from one to eight days. During this time I have not suffered the least distress internally, and my usual spells of "bilious headache" and "auto-intoxication" have disappeared completely. The day I closed the lid on my pill box I lead an active life, so I did not think it necessary to take to your rolling or somersaulting.

"Dr. Brady, you can imagine what this means to me when I tell you that my work requires 16 hours service a day, 365 days in the year. That I perform as much bodily labor in that 16 hours as the average laboring man does in eight hours, and my mind is required to be decidedly on the alert every minute of the 16 hours. Of the balance of the 24 hours each day, I usually spend two of them reading, and the other six sleeping soundly.

"You are doing a good work, Doctor, and I thank you.
"Yours very truly,
"....."

I have received scores of similar reports, that is, a considerable number of people have informed me that they have succeeded in recovering from the constipation and phlegm habit just as this Michigan man did and invariably the reports agree that no particular harm or even discomfort comes from the first long wait, whether it be two days or ten.

This feature is of the utmost importance, for it is the universal fear of dire consequences from delay of a bowel movement that keeps so many poor folks enslaved to this depraved habit.

Note that this Michigan man at first doubted the assurance I gave, that constipation is merely a bad habit and there is no harm whatever in going a week without movement. He thought that might apply to other folk but of course not to him. If you are a victim of constipation and phlegm habit you will probably think as the Michigan man did. But if you can take my word for it, my assurance as a physician of fair experience and a health authority of fair standing, that no serious harm can be done by waiting a week for nature to resume control of the bowel function, why, here's your chance to go free. Take it or leave it. I don't care a hoot one way or the other.

Were it only constipation, I wouldn't waste space talking about it. Constipation is a trifle of no particular importance so far as health may be concerned. It is the phlegm physics and various ailments which people with morbid obsessions about the effects of constipation resort to, that do incalculable harm, and I am trying to exhort such people to free themselves.

When anybody does win his freedom through my efforts I feel that it is a victory for health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Let Pump Enough Alone

Please send me directions for reducing. I am 5 feet tall, weigh 125 pounds, 37 years old, health excellent. I would like to lose 10 pounds. Played golf all summer and fall but never lost an ounce. (Mrs. K. F. B.)

Answer—And may you never lose another, is the wish of an admirer of nice plump women. Your craving to reduce is abnormal. Your weight is normal. Congratulations, and try the Brady Symphony for that fat feeling.

Sulphur in Shoes

An 80-year-old man in Massachusetts attributes his health to the fact that he has always put a teaspoonful of sulphur in each shoe every morning in the spring and fall. He claims it wards off colds and grip. (Mrs. B. W. J.)

Answer—No particular harm in it, a tany rate, but I'd like to hear what Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, 33 years old, would say about it.

Bunion

Is the process as described in the enclosed clipping worth while for bunion? (Miss C. F.)

Answer—The absurdity of the nostrum, which purports to be a solvent for bunion, becomes manifest when you learn what a bunion is. A bunion is an incompletely dislocated great toe joint, the head of the bone being usually thickened, and the joint bursa or lubricating pad inflamed and often suppurating. It is ridiculous to imagine any remedy can dissolve a dislocation. Surgery is the only cure for an established bunion. Proper footwear, or better no shoes, will alleviate mild or early cases. For relief of the pain and inflammation a large wet dressing over night is helpful, especially one kept wet with alcohol or other evaporating lotion.

Very Dead

Your article about the impossibility of penetrating the skin with foods or medicines prompts me to ask whether ichtyol which physicians prescribe as an application to the leg in a case of phlebitis, penetrates the skin? If not, why is it used? (F. M. C.)

Answer—No. Icthyol is a substance obtained from dead fish, fish which have been dead a long time, fossil fish, in fact. It looks and smells impressive. But—

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

The Parent Counsellor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamp, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

A GENTLE LADY

I never heard that word before, being more familiar with gentleman, a word which I have always loved.

Here is a girl whose beau calls her a "gentle lady." He is a nice boy and his girl says he is not wealthy except in splendid morals.

Now what is she going to do with this little love affair? It seems that her aunt and uncle object. She has no mother, so she loves her aunt and yet her aunt is breaking her heart. She loves the boy but the aunt and uncle dislike him. Why? Well, let's read her letter:

"We have gone together for a year. He is a gentleman in every respect. He takes me to entertainments and that winter he took me to meet his parents. They were wonderful to me.

"My aunt and uncle knew some name long ago who bore the same name this boy bears. They think he will not amount to anything because those people did not amount to anything. When I go out with him Aunt won't speak to me when I come back. I can't stand it much longer.

"Uncle threatens to use a whip on him.

"Outside I smile, but inside I cry. All the satisfaction I get from my aunt and uncle is, 'Go and marry him!'

"Why! We are only school kids and the thought of marriage has never entered our minds. I want to do right and have clean morals always. But I also want to play fair with the boy who cares deeply for me, because, as he says, I am a 'gentle lady.'

"SEVENTEEN."

Why will old folks spill the beans? Why can't they give youngsters a chance? Why do they sometimes make it impossible for a girl or a boy to express normally and naturally the emotional life which is the gift bestowed on every youth? What a lot of fun, elders could have if they could sit back, smile upon, and bless his little love affairs which mean so much to these young people and which in so many cases are not only harmless, but absolutely helpful.

The boy is working his way through school. He thinks of "Seventeen" during the day. When he comes home from work he lifts the R. F. D. box cover wondering if there is a little note in it from her. She stands at the door watching for the letter carrier. "Of course I won't get a letter today. How foolish I am! I got one only yesterday. But then he MIGHT write again."

When he comes over to see her he ties his tie as he never tied it before he met her. He gives the once-over to the fit of his coat and the shine of his shoes. He may even master down his hair.

And she... "I wonder if he will like this shade of blue? Do you suppose he will notice these new stockings. Will he think these heels are too high? My but that's a grand book I read yesterday; I'm going to tell him about it. I do hope he brings some bon-bons."

I recommend that her aunt and uncle read Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen."

It reminds me of the O'Rourke who had just received citizenship papers. He had something in celebration of the event. Then he watched a big switch engine shunting cars. "You may back up, go ahead, you may puff and blow, but you can't vote."

To you, my dear, I recommend that you go on. We young folks must not let the world stop because some people who are out of touch with life, and whose souls are dead, are yelling "Whoa!"

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER

As Told to Me

Have you a clever saying of a child? Oftentimes a mother sends me one—not because she thought I'd publish it, but rather that I'd like to read it. If you have, tell it to me and then I'll tell it to all. Here's the last of my supply.

A Business Proposition
My brother said to my little daughter: "I'll give you a nickel for a kiss." And she replied, "No, thank you, I can make more money taking castor oil."

C. L. T.

Eat 'Em Alive

"Are caterpillars good to eat?" asked our little Jimmy.

"No," answered his daddy, "what makes you ask such questions at the table?"

"Because, papa, you had one on your lettuce, but it's gone now."

An Educational Film

My husband and I took our two youngsters to a theatre for the first time. Seeing the word "Asbestos" on the curtain the younger said in a stage whisper, "Papa, what does that mean?"

"Keep still," said the older, "and don't show your ignorance."

"That's their way of saying 'Welcome!'"

A Fifty Center

My small boy got into the habit of saying "Darn," which I naturally did not approve.

"Dear," I said to him, "here is ten cents; it is yours if you will promise me not to say 'darn' again."

"All right mother, I promise." As he lovingly fingered the money a hopeful look came into his eyes and he said, "Say, Mother, I know a word that's worth fifty cents."

"Ben Hur," Drama

Of Simple Emotions

The biggest things are the simplest. Not complexity of emotion, but its depth and truth mark greatness. In the instance of "Ben Hur," love and revenge are the supreme motives. Revenge—to overthrow the Roman who destroyed the House of Hur; Love, an inconsolable passion that made him search the wide world over to find his lost Mother and sister.

And Love, the flowering of youth's emotions to his true mate Esther; these are the keys to Ben-Hur's heart, and these are the elements of appeal that make his story so engrossing. This marvelous story has now been picturized for the first time from the word-famous novel and stage play, and will be presented at the California theatre Berkeley, for one week beginning Sunday, March 6th. Two performances daily at 2:30 and 8:30. Full orchestra with every show.

The great motives of the picture find their climax in the Antioch Chariot Race when Ben-Hur overthrows his enemy Messala and in the wondrous ending where Esther finds the lost ones and brings them to the Saviour to be healed.

Seats are now on sale at the California theatre box office in Berkeley. Telephone Berkeley 68 for reservations.

Bill Grimm's Progress

H.C. WITWER

Copyright, 1926, by Collier's Weekly and G. P. Putnam Sons
"Bill Grimm's Progress" is a picturization by Film Booking Offices of America, Inc. (F. B. O.) of H. C. Witwer's stories of the same name.

SYNOPSIS

Bill Grimm, risen to the front ranks of heavyweight boxing, is signed to meet the champion for the title. Barbara Bear is his fiancée and manager of his tea shops; Carlton Herne, married to Pansy Pilkington, a flimsy girl and friend of Bill's, is his best friend. Jack Fairfax, Bill's inveterate enemy, tries to wreck him the day of the fight, but Bill gets to the fight and is unfairly adjudged loser of the bout.

I'd already made arrangements for my future, just in case, being president of "Ye Flinn Shoppe, Inc."—a coast-to-coast chain of nobby tea parlors, built by public subscription to the stock.

We had a keen suite of offices in a big downtown skyscraper, and I was to stay in this apartment that I got a pale-quickening kick every time I read the gold letters on the frosted glass door of my own private trap: "W. W. Reginald Grimm, President." That had been my lifelong ambition, to be at the head of some big racket, whether it was a nation or a street-cleaning company, and now, by the Smith Brothers' whiskers, I'd done it. It was my office that me and Barbara was in conference, as usual, and don't get the silly idea, gentle reader, that tea parlors was all we ever talked about.

Well, to make a long story tasty, our horde of tea parlors clicked so fluently that within a short time my take-down would have made the movie stars raise their eyebrows. So's not to have all my eggs in one basket and then step on a banana peel, I got smart and looked around for other places to make my excess pennies work.

By paying a slight bonus here and there we didn't have much trouble at first, and then all at once there's no more stock to be had for love or money. Even advertising for it failed to excavate anybody which had a single share, and as there was a flock of it still to be accounted for we was puzzled. Then one morning Herne blows in, all excited.

"Bill, I've solved the mystery of the missing stock!" he pants. "Jack Fairfax has bought up practically all the stock we've been unable to locate!" he tells me. "Of course his idea is to hold us up for an exorbitant figure for the shares."

"Gracious!" exclaims Barbara. "He's like a villain in the movies, isn't he? Are we going to have to contend with him all our lives?" "There is a way!" interrupts Herne. "At least I believe I have a plan that will catch Fairfax in his own trap! Suppose we sort of circulate rumors that our business is falling off to a serious degree. We might even close a shop or two temporarily and then begin dumping our stock back on the market. Fairfax will continue buying until he finds out he's buying from us."

Then, unless I miss my guess by a mile, he'll get scared. He'll decide that you're broke and he'll throw his own stock back for sale. We'll buy all he sells until he sells short. Then we'll demand the delivery of the stock, he won't have it and we can make him pay what we choose!"

Well, we sprung our gag, as advertised. Did it work? I hope to tell you it did! Monsieur Fairfax fell for Herne's trick like the umpire he was, and when the smoke of this crazy buying and selling died away we had all our stock back again and Fairfax paid off till he wasn't fit to be large. "You'll pay me back in blood, Grimm!" he howled at me over the phone when he'd had things figured out for him by his brokers.

One morning Barbara, Pansy, Herne and me is indulging in the pleasures of horseshoe riding at the witching hour of six o'clock when a thunderstorm comes up. Our fiery steeds begin prancing and rearing and generally clowning around, and all of a sudden the beagle Pansy's astute lays back his ears and starts for Siberia, evidently thinking he was late for an appointment there. Not so good! We all set sail after this running idiot, but Pansy does a Prince of Wales within a few yards, landing on her shoulders in a hedge. By the greatest of luck she was more shook up than hurt and gamely grinned at a nasty cut where her arm had scraped on a rock.

Seeking some first aid treatment for her and a hide-out from the pelting rain, we rang the bell of a nearby house and the hired help let us in. The butler scurried out for bandages and iodine and Herne is making Pansy comfortable at the fireplace when, to our behold,

It was in my office that Barbara and me was in conference....

With Butch Ford, Izzy Rabinowitz and Shifty Jones, the last being a big colored boy which used to be my chief sparring partner, I took over ten acres in Fairfax Falls and began to build a health farm there. My buddies and me got ready and figured on making one-half of it a training camp for topnotch scrappers and the other half a place where broken-down business men, Charleston dancers and the like could get overhauled and rebuilt into red-blooded Nordics.

Well, after we got our tea parlors running smoothly, Herne and Pansy popped a sneak and ripped off a honeymoon in Europe, in spite of the fact that everybody's mail in those days was full of folders on Miami, a town in a place called Florida. By the time they come back Herne's folks are shakened. Me and Barbara seen 'em at the pier when we went to meet the ship, and they forgave their son and raised the ban on Pansy, which wouldn't have cured either way. Then the Herne pair ready to throw a big reception and ball, with the objects of giving high society a treat by introducing Pansy to it.

Young Herne come in the office a few days after his return and called a conference. This go-getter was all business, and this go-getter was all profits for the past six months he says we ought to make Ye Flinn Shoppe a closed corporation and grab all this gray for ourselves instead of paying it out in dividends. Barbara agrees with him and it was koshier with me too. So we begin quietly buying up the stock we'd sold on the open market.

Patrova Loses Plagiarism Suit

(By Universal Service)

ALBANY, March 2.—Olga Petrova has come to the conclusion that it is time women were permitted to serve on juries. This was admitted by the famed actress who appeared at a hearing in the capital today on bills authorizing women to sit with men in jury boxes. The loss of a plagiarism suit brought against her in New York recently is responsible.

"I had heard that with men in the jury box I couldn't lose," Mme. Petrova declared. "I helped pick 12 whom I was confident would not bring in a verdict against me, but they did. I think nine of them were asleep during the entire trial. I would not be afraid to be judged by women."

Pedrotti Takes Game In Last Night's Event

With eight pairs already eliminated and eight more to play, interest in the billiard tournament being conducted at the Fern Leaf cigar store on Macdonald avenue is increasing nightly.

J. Pedrotti took two games away from J. Healey last night, with the latter under a 15-point handicap. Tonight Nozella and Petyua meet in another tournament round.

TOM MEIGHAN AT RICHMOND IN 'CANADIAN'

Some months ago, when Thomas Meighan wrote that in the future he would only do dramatic stories with a strong punch, critics sat up and took notice. Then came "Tin Gods." They stopped sitting, long enough to applaud, because the "good luck star" had suddenly reverted to the Meighan of "Manslaughter" fame. The next news emanating from the studios was to the effect that he had chosen W. Somerset Maugham's play, "The Land of Promise," as his new vehicle.

It came to the Richmond theatre last night as "The Canadian." To dispel all doubts, let it be distinctly understood that Meighan's latest meets the high standard set by "Tin Gods."

Mona Palma is Tom's new leading woman. Other film features on the same program include "A Rainy Knight," a Mack Sennett comedy; "Prizma," the screen magazine, and a Grantland Rice "Spotlight."

Bible Romance At the California Theatre, Berkeley

The picturization of "Ben Hur," a Tale of the Christ, by General Lew Wallace, will occupy the California theatre at Berkeley beginning March 6 and twice daily thereafter.

New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia had the only presentations of the great epic last season. "Ben Hur" was put forth by General Lew Wallace in 1880. For forty-five years the book enjoyed a circulation second only to Holy Writ. As a reverent stage play, "Ben Hur" was for twenty-two seasons the most popular attraction touring the United States.

The story begins in Bethlehem, with the star and the adoration of the wise men, then deals with the oppression of Judea and the ruin of the Hur family by Roman edict. The hero is successively a slave in the galleys, then by turn of fortune a Roman-dumvir's adopted son, the richest subject in Asia, winner of the Antioch chariot race, and then animated by the Jewish ideal of a temporal Messiah he raises a legion to take up arms for Jesus of Nazareth. But the Prince of Peace comes not into a worldly kingdom. Ben Hur is bidden to put up his sword, becoming a humble follower of the Master. His long lost mother and sister are restored to him by Esther and are cured of sickness by the Divine healing. This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer work is described as a faithful picturization of book and play, but with the immensely grandeur resources of the motion picture art. Ramon Navarro heads the cast of 150,000 players.

Harold Lloyd

Harold Lloyd who starts a lot of laugh troubles when he tries to arrest a circus in "THE KID BROTHER" which closes its engagement tonight at the California Theatre.

HAROLD LLOYD AT CALIFORNIA

Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and come on down to the California theatre, where Harold Lloyd's latest Paramount release, "The Kid Brother," is regaling crowded houses.

Those who attended last night's performance will tell you that "The Kid Brother" occupies a place on the same high plane as "The Freshman," "Hot Water," "Safety Last" and "For Heaven's Sake." It has laughs, plot, capable farceurs, original gags and sixty minutes crammed with side-splitting Lloydian humor.

"The Kid Brother" starts where others leave off when a medicine show arrives in Hickoryville. Harold Hickory, son of the sheriff and "kid brother" of two supermen, innocently gives them a permit to set up their tent, and the fun is off to a smashing start. Later, when Harold, the timid "young 'un," finds himself alone on a deserted ship with the "strong man" of the show, who has stolen his father money, there are even more thrills than Lloyd slapped into "Safety Last."

Jobyna Ralston acts as a charming foil to Harold in the lighter moments. Credit for Lloyd's laughingest laughfest goes to his remarkable production staff and Harold. Long may he wave o'er the cream of the screen comedy! Other features on the same program include "Mona Lisa," all in natural colors, with Hedda Hopper and Crauford Kent; "Peeking at Planets," a Hodge Podge; "International News," and Larry Canelo at the organ.

Cameole Crepe Is Fashion Favorite

Crepes lend themselves admirably to sportswear both in silks and wools. Of these, there are four general types, the smooth or flat crepe, rough-surface crepes, printed and novelty weave crepes and transparent crepes.

Perhaps next in favor, taffeta is the leading fabric for the new season. In compose, striped effects pin checks and plaid designs, these are mostly in light colors and very supple in quality. For evening black taffeta broadened in silk and in metal will be well represented.

range of new beige to brown shades, blues, greens and grays continue in favor, largely because of the self-trimming possibilities.

Perhaps the loveliest of all the new fabrics is in this class and is called "cameole," a new suede-finish wash silk, suggesting crepe meteor, but richer, heavier and with a dull, peach-like bloom, and will be found in exquisite two-tone effects of peach and sunset, Nile and darker greens, etc.

Ferrero Held Prisoner By Italy Fascist

PARIS, March 2.—Guglielmo Ferrero, the famous Italian historian, has been refused permission to leave Italy to go to America, according to the Rome correspondent of Lesoir, a Socialist evening newspaper, in a dispatch this afternoon.

Ferrero has written to Charles Reid, manager of his proposed lecture tour, that he is "a virtual prisoner in Italy."

The Fascist newspapers, according to the Lesoir correspondent, attacked Ferrero, saying he will not go to America.

BAMBINO GETS NEW CONTRACT $70,000 A YEAR

By HOWARD A. HEREFORD
(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Now that baseball's biggest bat swinger and its biggest box office attraction has agreed to play in the major league's biggest park for three more years and will receive the biggest salary ever awarded a wearer of the spiked shoes, and the largest smile in months lights the genial countenance of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, fans all over the country may begin to consider seriously the coming 1927 baseball season.

This was the sentiment here tonight as Broadway buzzed with the details of the peaceful settlement of Babe Ruth's salary difficulties.

That the Bambino compromised with the Yankee management and accepted their three-year offer at $70,000 a year, instead of accepting his usual tactics, and adhering stubbornly to his $100,000 demand, for a two-year period, has obviously added to his already great popularity.

All of the major league clubs may be working busily at their various southern training camps, and half a dozen managers may have committed themselves to the usual pre-season pennant prophecies, but for the average fan spring training will not begin till the big slugger with the home run complex puts his sprawling signature to Colonel Ruppert's contract on Friday and hops off Saturday night to join the other half of the American league champion Yankee team at St. Petersburg, Fla.

And if the present schedule is adhered to these events will take place. The Babe, who had hastened to the quiet little room in St. Vincent's Hospital, where his wife is confined to a sick bed, before taking up his contract matter, emerged an hour later with the worried look gone from his face and announced that "the wife was doing nicely."

When Ruth arrived here on the train he was at once surrounded by a jubilant crowd of fans and the usual reporters and photographers.

Fans With Babe

"Make the Colonel give you that $100,000, Babe. Don't weaken now, when you're rounding third base. Any one of those three world series homers in St. Louis was worth $100,000, Babe."

It was obvious that the fans were all "Ruth" in their sentiments.

Ruth fought his way good-naturedly through the jam and taxied to his trainer's office. Later in the day at the Colonel's brewery, the agreement was reached.

Just to show that there were no hard feelings between him and his boss, Babe stated emphatically that he thought some of the other teams, who shared in the big box office receipts his home runs

McTigue, Sharkey Ready To Tangle In 15 Round Bout

NEW YORK, March 2.—Tomorrow night is the night of nights in the lives of an old man from Dublin named Mike McTigue and a hard young man from Boston who is known as Jack Sharkey. It is the night when they will sit opposite each other at Madison Square arena in the second round of Tex Rickard's heavy-weight elimination contest. The winner will meet Jimmy Maloney of Boston who did quite a thorough job of eliminating Jack Delaney in the first round. The bout is a fifteen rounder. Sharkey is a 9 to 1 favorite.

College Heads Declare Fags Are Unethical

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, March 2.—Smoking at the two big universities here is not immoral, but the whiffing of fags in public places is decidedly unethical.

This was revealed in a survey conducted today at both the University of Chicago and Northwestern University.

Dean Elizabeth Wallace of the University of Chicago said: "There are no smoking rules on the University of Chicago campus. The women are permitted to smoke on the main floors of the dormitories and they smoke in their rooms, but they seldom take the privilege of smoking in public."

Both Betty and Alice Graham, co-eds, believe smoking is a matter of ethics and not of morals. At Northwestern, however, the same situation does not exist. Winifred Richardson, dean of women, has taken a firm stand against smoking. She announced that smoking by co-eds in places where students gather, will be considered bad form.

"It will not become a group question," she asserted, "and will be treated by the university in individual cases."

Helen Cole, treasurer of the Self Government association, is not taking the edict of the dean seriously, it was said. She is supported editorially by the Daily Northwestern, student organ, which says:

"It is far more beautiful to smoke in the open and in public, than to hide it away in eating places and clubs where no faculty members watch. Despite the fact that freedom of speech and action is regarded as the right of every American, the office of the dean of women has sought to gag the expression of the ideas of the women students."

brought in should help, Colonel Ruppert pay his salary.

Everyone was satisfied. The Colonel showed his relief that Babe hadn't insisted on that $100,000 and Babe seemed pleased with office receipts his home runs

FAVOR RAISE IN FISH LICENSE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—

Incontrovertible arguments in favor of the proposed increased license, tax for the privilege of hunting and fishing in the "sportsman's paradise" are seen in recent heavy rainfall in the higher altitudes of California. While farmers of the state have been blessing the Providence which gave them plenty of rain this season the California fish and game commission is having a strenuous time replacing the fish traps and fish racks at egg-collecting stations in the mountains. Under the increased license many of these racks and traps would be superfluous, as provision has been made in the new budget, based on the proposed increase, for brood ponds where California's own favorite sport fish, the Rainbow trout (salmo irideus) would be kept for propagation purposes, instead of taking them in the racks and traps, as in the past. Introduced species are already propagated in this way.

At Shackleford Creek, Hornbrook, Bogus Creek, Camp Creek and other places contiguous to Mt. Shasta Hatchery (largest sport fish hatchery in the world) a great deal of damage has been done by the heavy rains. This may prevent a good egg take at the collecting stations this year, according to W. H. Shebley, chief of the commission's department of fish culture. Shebley has already made arrangements for repair of the racks and traps, $4,000 having been set aside for this purpose by Executive Officer B. D. Marx Greene. A large force of carpenters has been assembled to begin work as soon as the roads to the stations are passable.

At Hornbrook station the cabin and personal effects of the man in charge were washed away. While

C. of C. Members Invited For Marin Peak Excursion

A drive to the summit of Mt. Tamalpais as guests of the Toll Road company will be the privilege of officers and directors of the Richmond chamber of commerce, it is announced by the Tamalpais Ridgecrest Boulevard company. A pass for himself and automobile will be given each member who is able to make the trip. The date will be announced soon.

Winding around Mt. Tamalpais, the Ridgecrest boulevard affords a marvelous panoramic view that has aided materially in advertising Marin county to the country at large. The San Anselmo chamber of commerce inaugurated the boulevard project in 1922 with the aid of private funds subscribed by residents.

Berkeleyan Pays $25 for Speeding

Juan Garcia, of Berkeley, arrested by city traffic officers on a charge of exceeding the speed limit, was fined $25 when he appeared in the court of Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday.

Rules, regardless of length, are fine—if not too thick. The man at Shackleford Creek was reporting conditions over long distance phone to Captain G. H. Lambson, superintendent at Mt. Shasta hatchery, the waters carried away all bridges and he was forced to take a horse on his return trip. Fall Creek is safe, although the water ran over the tanks. Beaver Creek also withstood the high waters with no loss of material.

Gordon Jacobs, resident of the Hornbrook section, is authority for the statement that the water is higher there than at any time since 1889-90.

FIGHT CARD OF EL CERRITO IS INTERESTING

Cliff Kramer, former Alameda heavyweight, will be given the once over Friday night by many of the sporting world contingent when he hooks up with Sammy Olsen, the Los Banos, Cal., rugged swede giant.

This contest looks like one of the most interesting bouts put on of late as both are well known and about the best in the 200-pound class. Already Kramer has had many offers since he has taken the bout with Olsen at El Cerrito and even next week is being billed at the S. F. Monarch club show against big Bill Cusick.

Those promoters should really await Friday night's outcome as Olsen has a bit of a word to say, and many think he will stop Kramer. Olsen has never been knocked out, while Kramer has. Along with that Kramer has not fought for some time while Sammy has been quite active, and recently beat John Ziegler.

Johnny Alessi, the all-navy lightweight champion, will be put on display against Mike Denton of Vallejo in the six-round semi. Alessi is said to be a real fighter and against Denton he will have to be, as the Vallejo boy has won many main events at Vallejo with fast boxers.

The balance of the El Cerrito Athletic fight club's card is all class. Cliff Hottenger, who looks like a real find, will face Kid Cal, who is said to be some boy. Cal is from Los Banos and like Hottenger is the home town clown and has beaten everything they had in that section.

Mantel Vasquez, the Berkeley Mexican flash who is coming along with rapid strides, will fight Mickey Gibbons, another Vallejo boy. Gibbons is all fighter. He just loves to trade in and throw gloves. Shoe leather may be tough but Gibbons is even tougher.

Doc Limas and his famous "Mary Ann" wallop that has been knocking his opponents dead, is back and will face George Cogkins, another knockout king from Sacramento.

Mickey Brown, the fast little Richmond featherweight, will box Charlie Miller in the opening bout. The show as a whole speaks all class and all indications are that Promoter Rossi will again entertain a banner house.

Last Rites for Mrs. Rickabaugh

Last rites for Mrs. M. A. Rickabaugh, mother of Mrs. Lee D. Windrem of Richmond, will be conducted this afternoon at Kelseyville, Lake county. Mrs. Rickabaugh passed away after a lingering illness at the Oakland home of another daughter, Mrs. E. R. Cross, formerly of Richmond. Mrs. Charles H. Pulse, also a former resident of this city, survives her mother.

Mrs. Rickabaugh was well known in Richmond. She lived on a ranch in Lake county for nearly 50 years and visitors from this city often came to see her.

Berkeley and Richmond Meet Friday in Game

The baseball teams of the Richmond Union high school and Berkeley high meet Friday on the latter's diamond for the first game of the season for both nines. If weather conditions permit the full nine innings will be played.

The local team has had scant chance to ease the cramps out of winter-bound muscles and Major Hill has been able to put them through only one week's workout. The Berkeley team beat the Richmond team by a score of 3 to 1 in the first game of the series last year. In the second and last meeting the local nine came out with a 10 to 1 victory.

The probable lineup of the local team will be: "Swenson, catcher; Pinto, pitcher; Baldwin, 1b; Phillips, 2b; Gordon, ss; Williams, 3b; Muelle, lf; Pinto, cf; Anderson, rf. John Medo will be called to stop any hilarious batting orgy of the Berkeley team as his prowess in twirling the apples like marbles through a vacuum is well known.

Ricciardo Talks at Kiwanis Meet

Nicholas Ricciardo, chairman of the vocational education and guidance committee of the state board of education, outlined the duties devolving upon the service club in assisting the younger generation toward success, at a meeting of the Richmond Kiwanis club yesterday.

"The service club must co-operate with the schools and the community in making boy successes instead of boy failures. Richmond will be 20 years from now exactly what it is made by the generation of today."

Roy Gourley and Charles Clark of the Bulgin evangelistic group gave a number of vocal duets. Clara D. Horner presided as chairman of the day.

After a several years' layoff Cliff Kramer, heavyweight boxer of the bay region, will stage a comeback Friday night at El Cerrito with Sammy Olson as his opponent. If he emerges triumphant from the scrap Friday night, Olson will be in line to box Bill Cusick in a six-round special go at the Monarch club's show Tuesday night at San Francisco.

SHARKEY FAVORED TO WIN

NEW YORK, March 3.—With indications that a record-breaking house will be in attendance, Jack Sharkey of Boston and Mike McTigue, veteran New York boxer, are waiting for the opening gun in their scheduled 15-round bout tonight at Madison Square Garden. Sharkey is the favorite at present by odds ranging from 8 to 5 to 10 to 5. Youth will be on the side of Sharkey, but it remains to be seen whether the punching power of the wily veteran will not hamper him.

Friends vs. Profit Producers

The Mechanics Bank is an independent and locally owned institution, measures its success by what it can put into the community by helpful service, rather than by what it can take out.

The first question asked in determining its policies is: "How can we make this bank a more effective ally of Richmond individuals and concerns?" Service is an all-important consideration.

In dealing with The Mechanics Bank, therefore, you can feel that you enjoy the status of a valued friend, not merely a source of possible profit.

Bill Fields Is Embroided in Court Battle

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, March 1.—The services of William C. Fields, funny man of stage and screen, are the bone of contention in a $100,000 suit brought in supreme court by Phillip Goodman, musical comedy producer, against Famous Players Motion Picture Corporation. It was revealed today.

Goodman charges that Famous Players "enticed" Fields to break a contract the comedian had made with Goodman in 1924. At that time, Goodman alleges, Fields agreed to work for him in musical comedy for three years commencing September 1, 1925.

Fields, Goodman claims, was to receive 10 per cent of the gross receipts, with a minimum salary of $2500 a week, and also receive a royalty of one per cent.

Justice Bijur signed an order today restoring the suit to the calendar of the supreme court, after the defendants had lost by default. No date was set for the hearing.

Wheeler Heads Attack Against Nicholas Butler

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 1.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's portrayal of a strong current of public feeling running against prohibition in the middle west drew upon his head today a new attack by Wayne B. Wheeler, anti-saloon league general counsel.

Dr. Butler is not the first orator to believe his audience convinced when it was merely polite, said Wheeler.

"He probably entertained and amused them. But if he desired to know just how the middle west stands on prohibition, let him read election returns rather than count hand-claps at a wet gathering."

Wheeler denied that Ohio, Illinois, Minnesota, and Indiana are wet. He conceded the wettest in Wisconsin, "where Milwaukee made infamous by the beer traffic, dominates the state."

"Wherever the Quebec plan, endorsed by Dr. Butler, has been urged upon American voters, they have increased the dry majority," Wheeler asserted.

HOUSE ACCEPTS VETERANS BILL PROVIDE LOANS

The House under suspension of the rules rejected the conference report and then voted to accept all Senate amendments to the bill. In this way the necessity of the Senate acting upon the conference report was obviated.

This course was decided upon by Rep. William R. Green (R) of Iowa, sponsor of the bill, and Rep. John N. Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee, to avoid possibility of the bill being smothered in the legislative jam facing the Senate.

Most important of the Senate amendments was one offered by Senator Bratton (D) of New Mexico. That amendment provides that world war veterans in hospitals shall continue to receive $80 a month from the government after July 1. Under existing law this would have been cut to $40 on that date.

Two other minor amendments are designed to safeguard the veterans in applying for loans.

Coolidge Will Sign
President Coolidge undoubtedly will sign the bill. It went through the House by unanimous vote. The fight in the Senate was chiefly on amendments.

It was passed by Congress to make good a pledge in the adjusted compensation insurance certificates that the veterans would be able to make loans upon them if they found it necessary. The loan feature was inserted chiefly in lieu of a cash payment.

Hesitancy of some banks to make loans on the certificates resulted in a flood of bills in Congress to direct the Veterans' Bureau to make loans. Banks may continue to make loans, but veterans desiring to borrow from Uncle Sam will be able to do so under the Smoot-Green bill.

Government loans will be made upon terms substantially the same as those made by banks. The interest rate will be 6 per cent.

Nameless Vet is Called Fraud in Dept. of Justice

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Jerry Tarbot, "nameless veteran" whose efforts during the last two years to establish his identity and prove that he saw service with the marines in the world war have attracted nationwide attention and sympathy, heard himself called a fraud, a draft dodger, and the possessor of a checkered career and many aliases by the department of justice today.

Tarbot sat placidly through an explosive hearing before the veterans' committee of the House on the bill presented by Representative Albert Carter of California to extend the benefits of the Veterans' act to him.

And when all was said and done, when Representative Royal Johnson of South Dakota, chairman of the veterans' committee, had denounced him, and Mrs. Florence Lange of Detroit had identified him as her former husband, Tarbot stuck to his story.

"Jerry Tarbot has long been maintained by prominent people and I am now prepared to identify him after investigation by the department of justice," said Chairman Johnson. "We should take care of a man who suffered through the war, but maudlin sentimentality should be left out."

Jerry Tarbot is really Alexander Dubois, Jr., the son of a French chef in a Cuban hotel and of a deceased Irish mother, Johnson said. One of his many aliases is Howard F. Noble, under which he married at least one woman, the chairman declared. This woman, Mrs. Lange, whose present husband accompanied her, was called to testify.

In a quiet, composed manner, Mrs. Lange, a comely woman in the early forties, told she had known Tarbot's wife for two weeks after an acquaintanceship of a few months.

In 1917 she had a rooming house in Detroit, and Tarbot, whom she referred to as "Noble," was a mechanic in the American Car and Foundry company, she said. They met and married. She divorced him in the early days of 1918 on grounds of "incompatibility and cruelty."

Specimens of his handwriting have been compared with signatures found at various plants over the country and identified, it is said. This would tend to prove that Tarbot had applied for jobs in a number of places at the time he says he was in the thick of the world war, it was stated.

COOLIDGE O.K.'S LARGE CROWDS NAVAL BILL FOR ATTEND BULGIN NEW CRUISERS REVIVAL MEET

was urging the nations of the world to abandon their race in competitive armament.

But Congress defied his wishes, largely upon the insistence of Speaker Longworth in the House and Senator Hale of Maine in the Senate.

Whether any substantial progress will be made in the building of cruisers under today's appropriation was regarded as extremely doubtful. A single cruiser costs about $30,000,000. The $450,000 allowed will hardly go farther than drawing plans for the cruisers and building the ways for them.

The bill signed by him today appropriated $316,000,000 for the navy and authorized an additional $9,000,000 for the purchase of navy airplanes.

It allowed $19,000,000 for the year's work on cruisers, and other new vessels now under construction. It provided $2,210,000 to convert the battleships New York, Utah, Texas, Florida, Arkansas and Wyoming into oil burners and to equip them against submarine and air attacks.

Other interesting items in the bill were: For the naval reserves, $3,890,500; for ordnance, $11,450,000; smokeless powder, $1,000,000; torpedoes and appliances, $450,000; experiments on high explosives, $100,000; pay, subsistence and transportation of sailors, $148,000,000; dredging the Pearl Harbor channel, $2,800,000.

Viano was star pitcher last year. For the rest Seagrave faces the task of building up a complete new outfield and infield.

The evangelist, who is a master at exposition, enlarged upon the parables of the lost sheep, the lost coin, and the prodigal son, pointing out with his splendid blending of logic, keen wit and pathos the possibility of every sinner returning to God, and God's readiness to receive those who repent.

C. C. MEMBERS DINNER MAR. 15 AT CARQUINEZ

Plans for the big membership dinner meeting at the new Hotel Carquinez, Tuesday evening, March 15, arranged by the chamber of commerce in honor of Lester G. Ready, president of the Key System Transit company and speaker of the evening, are rapidly taking shape.

The event is under the general direction of the transportation committee of the chamber of commerce, headed by W. W. Scott and comprising Henry A. Johnston, Harry Albert, Fred La Moine, J. H. Plate. The committee met at luncheon, Hotel Carquinez, yesterday and thrashed out details of the dinner membership meeting.

Archie Winchell, chairman, and Mrs. H. W. Bryant, Laid Johnson, and Dan Reardon of the entertainment committee, have the evening's program in charge.

"Richmond wants to know Mr. Ready of the traction company as a friend," declared Scott. "That's why the chamber of commerce has extended this invitation to meet with the chamber of commerce members at dinner. While Richmond is confronted with several important transportation problems, Mr. Ready will not be asked to discuss these particular problems on March 15. The transportation committee is not yet ready to make its recommendations but will do so at some time in the near future, following the Ready dinner on March 15. On the other hand Mr. Ready has expressed a desire to get a close-up of the progressive East Bay citizens. He has welcomed the opportunity of coming to Richmond and breaking bread with the progressive citizens, represented in the chamber of commerce."

Because the dining hall at the Carquinez is limited, members of the chamber of commerce are urged to make their reservations for the dinner early. These reservations will be mailed out early the coming week. The price is $1. Some 200 odd reservations are available.

POLICE PROBING MYSTERY DEATH

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, March 2.—The mystery surrounding the strangling of the 18-year-old bride, Mrs. Mabel Wood, in her hotel bathtub deepened today when it became known that police, after a 48-hour search, have failed to find part of her clothing.

A white apron, a pair of pink stockings and a silk chemise, she is said to have worn the last day of her life, when she returned from the nearby restaurant where she was employed as cashier, were reported missing.

Meanwhile, dissatisfied with the results obtained so far, the young husband, Carl Wood, offered a $500 reward for information that might lead to the arrest and conviction of the slayer.

"This money is all I have," he said. "I wish it could be more. It represents Mabel's life insurance. This $500 and the $200 we were able to save up since we were married last September is all we have and the $200 must pay for her funeral."

Police intimated that they are watching the movements of one man.

Funeral arrangements were concluded today. The body of the slain bride was forwarded to Evansville, Ind., late today, for burial there.

Will Sue Brother For Two Million

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Campbell Carrington, who was injured in a cane duel with his brother, Colonel Edward C. Carrington, said today that he will sue the colonel for $2,000,000 damages.

He is still in the hospital where six stitches were taken in his scalp after the early morning street duel in front of the colonel's wife's apartment that Campbell had just left.

The colonel is under $1,000 bond to appear in court to answer a charge of assault as soon as his brother is able to appear against him.

Three suits have already been filed in the famous Carrington case and now the fourth—the $2,000,000 damage suit—is threatened.

The colonel had sued his brother for $1,000,000 on a charge of alienation of his wife's affections. Both the colonel and his wife, Anna, have sued each other for divorce. Campbell is named as co-respondent in his brother's divorce suit.

A 5-cent can of condensed milk will make a 14-cent quart of milk and the reading material on the can thrown in.
